B52 Bombers Attack Viet Red Regiment

Force Moves To within 35 Miles of Saigon

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — The U.S. Air Force sent a flight of B52 bombers today against a North Vietnamese regiment spotted in the D Zone jungle only 35 miles north of Saigon. Intelligence officers said it was the closest North Vietnamese regulars had been reported to the capital.

The B52s dropped their huge bomb loads only four miles ahead of thousands of U.S. and Australian foot soldiers cutting through the brush with machetes and jungle knives. As Operation Silver City on its 10th day slashed deeper into the old Communist stronghold, the Allied forces found 113 more bodies, bringing the enemy toll in a four-hour battle Wednesday to 275 killed.

An American source said two enemy wounded identified the troops as North Vietnamese regulars. One of them—a Viet Cong—said that his battalion of 400 men was 90 per cent North Vietnamese army regulars.

In the skies over North Viet Nam, U.S. Air Force and Navy pilots evaded some surface-to-air missiles and also spotted enemy planes they thought were Soviet-designed MIG21s, advanced jets equal to some of the best American planes. The MIGs fled without attacking.

Action picked up elsewhere.

The U.S. command reported at its daily briefing: The U.S. 25th Infantry Division cracked into the Bao Trai area, 20 to 25 miles west of Saigon, in a sweep dubbed Operation Honolulu, after the jungle divisions home base. Its aim is to clear the Viet Cong from the many waterways and underground networks in the sector.

American Air Force planes joined the U.S. 101st Airborne after the paratroopers stirred up light contact with the Communists in ricefields 12 miles southwest of Tuy Hoa, on the South China Sea 240 miles northeast of Saigon. It appeared a major battle might be developing.

In the central highlands, the 25th Infantry's 3rd Brigade skirmished with an enemy force of unknown size near the Laotian border 195 miles north of Saigon. The brigade is hitting at Communist supply routes linked with the Ho Chi Minh Trail across the border.

'Fast Time' Bill Is Given New Backing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has voted to put the entire nation on daylight saving time, and Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield says he thinks there is a good chance the Senate will go along.

The vote in the House Wednesday was 292 to 93 for a bill to allow the Interstate Commerce Commission to order a one-hour time advance in all present time zones from the last Sunday in April until the last Sunday in October, starting next year.

The only exceptions could occur if states, by acts of their legislatures, decided to stay on standard time. But the entire state would have to do so, eliminating the present situation where some states have a number of different time zones.

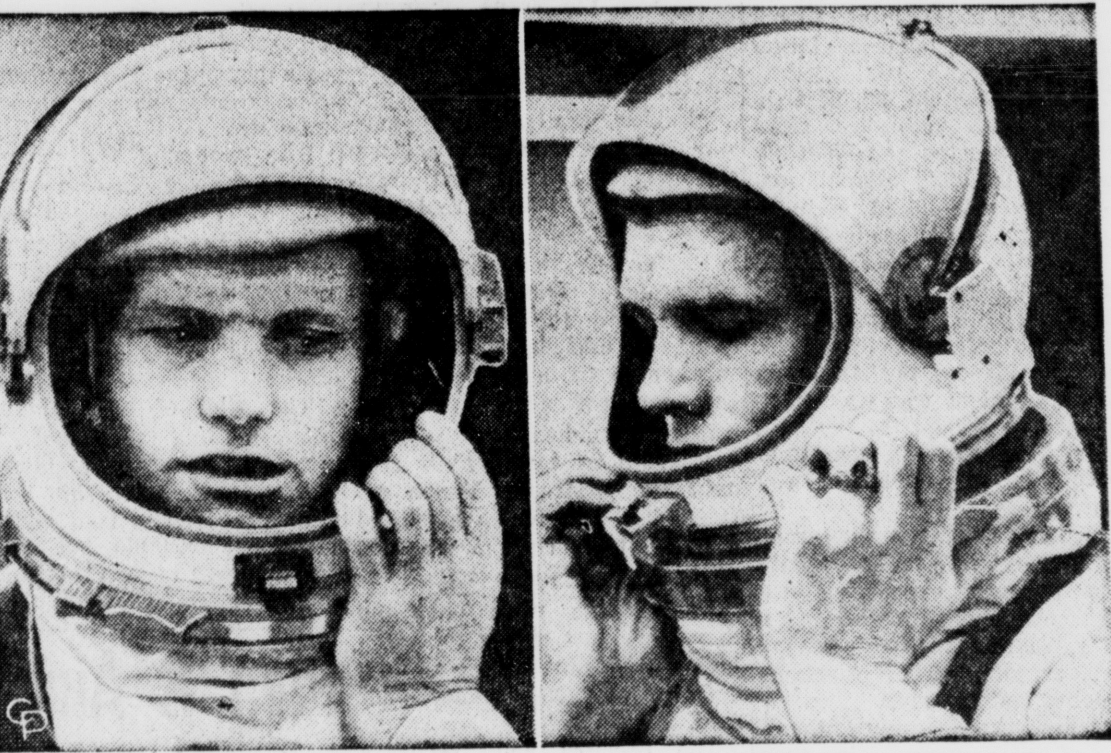

The Senate has passed a less stringent bill that says only that a state or community wanting to go on daylight saving time must do so from late April until late October. Mansfield said he favored the House measure and that there is a good chance the Senate will accept it.

The House measure would eliminate local option provisions under which some states in recent times within their borders. Twelve states do not observe any "fast time" at present.

Spacemen Safe and Sound

NEIL A. ARMSTRONG DAVID R. SCOTT

Details Awaited On Hair-Raising Spin in Space

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The Gemini 8 astronauts rode a destroyer toward Okinawa today, while space officials dug into the mystery of the violent mishap that brought their mission to a hair-raising end in the waters of the Pacific Ocean.

The destroyer Leonard F. Mason, which picked Neil Armstrong and David Scott out of the water after the first emergency landing in U.S. man-in-space history, was scheduled to put them ashore at Naha at 6 p.m. EST.

Both were reportedly to have come safely through the dangerous re-entry which abruptly terminated their scheduled three-day flight just 10 hours, 42 minutes after the blastoff.

At a morning news conference at Houston, Flight Director Gene Kranz said it will be some time before officials can say what caused Gemini 8 to buck in space.

The trouble which sent the spacecraft into a hair-raising spin happened when there was no voice or telemetry communication between earth and the spacecraft.

Armstrong, a civilian, and Scott, an Air Force major, today were aboard the USS Leonard F. Mason, the destroyer that retrieved them from the Western Pacific early today.

The Mason was due in Naha, Okinawa, about 11 p.m. EST today. The astronauts will be flown to Cape Kennedy Friday to tell their story to anxious officials.

What they have to say will have an important bearing on the future of the U.S. space program. The whole concept of hooking up with another satellite might have to be changed.

The trouble cropped up only half an hour after they achieved the first linkup with another satellite.

At 6:30 p.m. EST, command pilot Armstrong climaxed a brilliant space chase by gently nudging the Gemini 8 nose into a funnel-like docking collar of a 26-foot-long Agena space vehicle.

"It is really a smoothie," Armstrong said when the docking was completed.

But his elation was short-lived.

Mission directors at the control center in Houston, Tex., suddenly were jolted out of their seats when tracking data indicated the joined spaceships were rolling.

"It took off in roll and yaw," Armstrong reported.

This quote was passed on to newsmen by Flight Director John Hodge. But he and other officials said they could not let reporters hear the full tape because the tone of the voices and what the astronauts said might be misinterpreted.

TURN SIGNALS on the traffic light at the intersection of Main and Mingo Sts. have been removed.

The signals permitted east-bound motorists to turn left on to Lancaster Pike and west-bound drivers to turn right onto Main St. while traffic from Mingo and Route 56 east was stopped.

However, the turn signals did not speed the flow of traffic at the intersection as anticipated, and they were removed this morning.

Crime Clinic Is Planned

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The first of a series of 11 crime control clinics sponsored by Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe is scheduled for Thursday, March 24, at the Chillicothe Federal Reformatory.

Law enforcement officers from nine counties — Adams, Fayette, Highland, Jackson, Lawrence, Pickaway, Pike, Ross and Scioto are to attend the session.

Alternating as moderators for the clinics will be the president of the Buckeye State Sheriff's Association, Bernard L. Keiter of Dayton, and George Rice of Chillicothe, president of the Ohio Association of Chiefs of Police.

Future regional sessions will be held in Zanesville, Ottawa, Middletown, Youngstown, Medina, Sidney, Tiffin, Athens, Delaware and Painesville.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A report by the Office of Education says that 12 million Americans are still without public library service. The figure a decade ago was 25 million.

Wapak Ends Prayer Vigil

Home Town Backs Native Spaceman

WAPAKONETA, Ohio (AP) — Wapakoneta couldn't communicate with hometown astronaut Neil Armstrong during his shortened Gemini 8 flight with David Scott, but through a minister, it did the next best thing.

The Rev. Thomas J. Weber was in long-distance telephone contact with Armstrong's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Armstrong, when newsmen right at Cocoa Beach, Fla., couldn't talk with them—and at a time no one could talk with the astronauts.

This was during the suspense-filled communications blackout period shortly before Gemini 8 splashed down in the Pacific.

The Rev. Mr. Weber, pastor of St. Paul's United Church of Christ of which the Stephens Armstrongs are members, shared a prayer with them over the telephone.

The minister had been conducting the regular Wednesday evening Lenten service when members of the church first learned, through him, of Gemini 8's difficulty, cutting short the planned three-day space journey.

The church's vigil, planned for the duration of the flight, ended when the "safe and sound" report came from a U.S. navy destroyer.

There had been gaiety, along with the natural tension, earlier in the day throughout this Auglaize County community of 9,000 in western Ohio.

But when word came of the early comedown, tavernkeepers pulled the plugs for jukeboxes and bowling machines in favor of the tense reports on television. Patrons slipped quietly and watched.

Today, Wapakoneta resumes its planning for one of its biggest days ever—welcome home day for Neil Armstrong, expected in about two weeks and expected to draw 50,000 to 60,000 persons here.

Five miles outside town, meanwhile, Armstrong's grand parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Korpeter, were among those most involved in the prayers for Neil's safety.

"We're hoping and praying that everything's going to turn out all right," Mrs. Korpeter had said when the capsule was ordered down.

Everybody's prayers were answered.

Skill Overcomes Space Problems

8 Flights Suffer Problems Aloft

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Eight of America's 12 manned space flights have run into major problems. But the courage, skill and training of astronauts have prevented any disasters.

When Gemini 8 began to spin violently Wednesday, command pilot Neil A. Armstrong, a civilian, made a last-ditch decision to use his only remaining system of maneuvering jets to bring it under control.

If he had exhausted the fuel in the system, his life and the life of pilot David R. Scott, an Air Force major, could have been jeopardized as they returned to earth.

In 1961, before any American achieved orbit, Air Force Lt. Col. Virgil I. Grissom had to swim for his life when the hatch blew on his spacecraft at sea after it landed.

In 1962, Navy Cmdr. M. Scott Carpenter was forced to steer by the horizon when a short circuit cut off the device that told him which way his Aurora 7 was pointing.

Just last August, Air Force Col. L. Gordon Cooper and Navy Lt. Cmdr. Charles Conrad Jr. nursed Gemini 5 through 120 revolutions after it looked like a fuel pressure problem might force them down after six. If it had been unmanned, space officials said, it would never have come down.

The first American in orbit, John H. Glenn Jr., then a Marine lieutenant colonel, had to take partial manual control of his Friendship 7 on Feb. 20, 1962, when a small jet thruster failed.

During Cooper's first space mission — the Faith 7 flight of May 15-16, 1963 — drinking water leaked into the cabin and ground stations feared that the automatic re-entry system might have been short circuited. They directed Cooper to fly the capsule manually back to earth and he became the first spaceman to do so.

Astronauts James A. McDivitt and Edward H. White II had to do without malfunctioning computers as they brought Gemini 4 down last June. They followed instructions from the ground and landed safely.

Bar Owner Linked to Bogus Bills

CLEVELAND (AP) — The federal grand jury as returned two indictments against Nick A. Imbrigiotta, owner of the Whisper Room, a Parma Heights night spot, in connection with an alleged $10 million counterfeit plot.

In the first indictment returned Wednesday, the grand jury charged Imbrigiotta, 35, with conspiring to print $10 million in counterfeit bills in denominations ranging from $1 to $100. The second indictment charged him and eight other persons arrested by Secret Service agents last month with possession and passing counterfeit bills.

Others named in the indictment are Eugene M. Murphy, 32, and Willard L. Murphy, 27, both of Parma; Robert L. Jordan, 35, and George R. Smith, 30, of Cleveland; James Pulley, 23, of Cuyahoga Falls; Robert K. Perry, 30, of Akron, a cousin, Ralph L. Perry, 19, of Medina and Henry J. Ruppel Jr., 28, Parma.

TV Networks Rapped for Gemini Report

NEW YORK (AP) — The three national television networks were deluged Wednesday night with telephone calls from persons protesting the cancellation of entertainment shows for news of the emergency Gemini splash-down.

The National Broadcasting Co. which pulled "The Virginian" and "The Bob Hope Show" off the air, said today it received more than 3,000 calls of protest, and a spokesman could not recall a single compliment.

The Columbia Broadcasting System said many callers asked what had happened to "Lost in Space," a science fiction show.

A spokesman for the American Broadcasting Co. said more than 1,000 calls protested three interruptions in the program "Batman," a comic adventure.

RFK To Receive Security Guard

OXFORD, Miss. (AP) — Worried University of Mississippi officials imposed tight security on this tree-studded campus today on the eve of an appearance by Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y.

The senator, who played a major role in ending the university's century-old segregation policy, will address the law school student body Friday afternoon.

The appearance of the late president's brother has provoked some criticism in Mississippi. A "rebel flag day" protest rally is set for tonight in Jackson, the state capital 180 miles to the south.

Kennedy's only purpose in coming to Mississippi "is to rub salt into the wound," said Rep. Prentiss Walker, this states lone Republican congressman.

Some state officials called for a display of Southern hospitality.

Kennedy was attorney general in 1962 when federal marshals and soldiers occupied the campus to quell a riot that followed the court-ordered enrollment of Negro James Meredith. Two men died in the riot and many more were hurt.

The New York senator will arrive by private plane, landing at the airport where the bulk of the 20,000 soldiers dispatched here in 1962 were quartered. He will attend a brief private reception sponsored by the campus Young Democrats Club, then will address the law students at Fulton Chapel — just across the street from where U.S. marshals and rioters clashed in 1962.

From Oxford, Kennedy will fly to Tuscaloosa for an address at the University of Alabama Friday night.

Ole Miss officials said outsiders would not be permitted on the campus during the Kennedy appearance. First priority for seats in the 1,400-seat chapel went to law students and faculty. About 600 remaining tickets were gobbled up quickly Wednesday by other students.

Many students stood in line without ever getting tickets.

University officials would not release the Kennedy timetable.

Cleric, 57, Arrested in Road Hassle

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (AP) — A 57-year-old retired minister turned farmer was under a charge of malicious trespass today because he drove his cattle into a barbed wire enclosure he built on an upopened interstate highway.

The Rev. Virgil O. Harrold contends the land is his and that he never got part of a $70,000 right-of-way judgment. He was released on his own recognizance to appear in City Court March 22.

The State Highway Commission says Harrold signed right-of-way agreements.

Harrold erected the fence Monday over part of Interstate 69 four miles southwest of Fort Wayne and drove his brown Swiss herd into it.

On Wednesday, eight carloads of state troopers and a state highway workers tore it down and left after driving the cattle back onto Harrold's farm.

Harrold retrieved some of the barbed wire, built another enclosure and put his cattle inside again.

State troopers reappeared and took Harrold away in handcuffs after getting a warrant from the Fort Wayne prosecutor.

Dublin Alert On Holiday

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Irish police don't expect any trouble on St. Patrick's Day today but they're on the alert.

The day of Ireland's patron saint has always been a quiet affair here compared with celebrations elsewhere, especially in New York and Boston.

But nationalist extremists last week blew the top off the 134-foot Nelson monument in downtown Dublin, and the 50th anniversary of the 1916 Easter uprising against England is only three weeks away.

This, and a rash of recent bombings, have police keeping an eye out for hotheads. However, authorities said they didn't expect any political trouble today.

The festive day dawned with church bells calling all Irishmen to religious services. There was a special service at the Church of Ireland's Anglican Cathedral at Downpatrick, County Down, where some believe St. Patrick is buried.

Girl Is Forced To Live in Closet

CLEVELAND (AP) — A 7-year-old girl told a Juvenile Court judge Wednesday how her mother locked her in the closet "almost every night" and made her sleep on a board.

Saroya Conway told Judge Albert A. Woldman "they made me eat there and go to the bath room there too. Lots of times I would be crying and screaming to get out but they wouldn't let me."

The mother, Mrs. Erlene Conway, 30, was found guilty of child neglect. Vernon D. Jones, 38, a family friend who the child called "Daddy," was found guilty of child abuse. Sentencing was scheduled today.

READY FOR OPENING NIGHT — Last night's dress rehearsal for "High Fever Follies" was a smashing success, according to Director Tom Ladd, and the huge cast is ready for the show's opening tonight in the CHS auditorium. This group of local housewives have donned costumes of the famous Radio City Music Hall Rockettes for one of the many colorful numbers of the variety-talent show.

Plan Is Aimed At Inflation

Economists Split On Value of Idea

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate-House Economic Committee has proposed that Congress enact a standby tax increase but finds the experts divided on whether the boost should actually be put into effect.

Four noted economists split, two against two, in testimony Wednesday on whether taxes should be raised at once to fight inflation. Three of them emphasized that despite some overheating the price pot is not yet boiling.

The witnesses disagreed also on some details of what taxes should be changed, how, and by how much. But all said an income tax rise should be included, and all held that the spade-work should be done now for an anti-inflation tax law which might never be used.

The hearings continue today.

While a subcommittee headed by Rep. Martha Griffiths, D-Mich., received testimony Wednesday, the full committee issued its formal report evaluating the President's annual economic message to Congress.

The Democratic majority — whose findings were disputed almost all the way down the line by the Republican committee members — recommended that:

1. A standby tax program "should be designed and enacted immediately with a provision that it should come into effect (Continued on Page 2)

New Teaching Gadget Hit

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — The advent of mechanical teaching devices doesn't set well with Dr. Houston Cole, President of Jacksonville (Ala.) State College.

He offered his doggerel in addressing a meeting of educators Wednesday in Birmingham.

"Days of the Golden rule,"

"The teacher said 'Good morning, class,'"

"And so she started school."

"Alas! How different things are now."

"The school day can't begin 'Till someone finds the socket 'And plugs the teacher in.'"

Wrong Garden Seed Brings $417 Lawsuit

ROME, Ga. (AP) — Farmer W. M. Cargle sued a seed store for $417 on grounds the seeds it sold him were the wrong ones. He wanted to grow purple-top beets, but got something else.

The Superior Court jury returned the price of the seeds, but decided to charge to experience his claims of $40 for depreciation of his mule, $225 for land damage, $50 for use of his tractor, $90 for rent of the land, $10 for fertilizer, and $2 for insecticides.

The seeds cost $1.

The Rev. Thomas J. Weber was in long-distance telephone contact with Armstrong's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Armstrong, when newsmen right at Cocoa Beach, Fla., couldn't talk with them—and at a time no one could talk with the astronauts.

This was during the suspense-filled communications blackout period shortly before Gemini 8 splashed down in the Pacific.

The Rev. Mr. Weber, pastor of St. Paul's United Church of Christ of which the Stephens Armstrongs are members, shared a prayer with them over the telephone.

The minister had been conducting the regular Wednesday evening Lenten service when members of the church first learned, through him, of Gemini 8's difficulty, cutting short the planned three day space journey.

The church's vigil, planned for the duration of the flight, ended when the "safe and sound" report came from a U.S. navy destroyer.

There had been gaiety, along with the natural tension, earlier in the day throughout this Auglaize County community of 9,000 in western Ohio.

But when word came of the early comedown, tavernkeepers pulled the plugs for jukeboxes and bowling machines in favor of the tense reports on television. Patrons sipped quietly and watched.

Today, Wapakoneta resumes its planning for one of its biggest days ever—welcome home day for Neil Armstrong, expected in about two weeks and expected to draw 50,000 to 60,000 persons here.

Five miles outside town, meanwhile, Armstrong's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William Korpeter, were among those most involved in the prayers for Neil's safety.

"We're hoping and praying that everything's going to turn out all right," Mrs. Korpeter had said when the capsule was ordered down.

Everybody's prayers were answered.

RFK To Receive Security Guard

OXFORD, Miss. (AP) — Worried University of Mississippi officials imposed tight security on this tree-studded campus today on the eve of an appearance by Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y.

The senator, who played a major role in ending the university's century-old segregation policy, will address the law school student body Friday afternoon.

The appearance of the late president's brother has provoked some criticism in Mississippi. A "rebel flag day" protest rally is set for tonight in Jackson, the state capital 180 miles to the south.

Kennedy's only purpose in coming to Mississippi "is to rub salt into the wound," said Rep. Prentiss Walker, this states lone Republican congressman.

Some state officials called for a display of Southern hospitality.

Kennedy was attorney general in 1962 when federal marshals and soldiers occupied the campus to quell a riot that followed the court-ordered enrollment of Negro James Meredith. Two men died in the riot and many more were hurt.

The New York senator will arrive by private plane, landing at the airport where the bulk of the 20,000 soldiers dispatched here in 1962 were quartered. He will attend a brief private reception sponsored by the campus Young Democrats Club.

then will address the law students at Fulton Chapel — just across the street from where U.S. marshals and rioters clashed in 1962.

From Oxford, Kennedy will fly to Tuscaloosa for an address at the University of Alabama Friday night.

Ole Miss officials said outsiders would not be permitted on the campus during the Kennedy appearance. First priority for seats in the 1,400-seat chapel went to law students and faculty. About 600 remaining tickets were gobbled up quickly Wednesday by other students.

Many students stood in line without ever getting tickets.

University officials would not release the Kennedy timetable.

Plan Is Aimed At Inflation

Economists Split On Value of Idea

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate-House Economic Committee has proposed that Congress enact a standby tax increase but finds the experts divided on whether the boost should actually be put into effect.

Four noted economists split, two against two, in testimony Wednesday on whether taxes should be raised at once to fight inflation. Three of them emphasized that despite some overheating the price pot is not yet boiling.

The witnesses disagreed also on some details of what taxes should be changed, how, and by how much. But all said an income tax rise should be included, and all held that the spade-work should be done now for an anti-inflation tax law which might never be used.

The hearings continue today. While a subcommittee headed by Rep. Martha Griffiths, D-Mich., received testimony Wednesday, the full committee issued its formal report evaluating the President's annual economic message to Congress.

The Democratic majority — whose findings were disputed almost all the way down the line by the Republican committee members — recommended that:

1. A standby tax program "should be designed and enacted immediately with a provision that it should come into effect (Continued on Page 2)

Cleric, 57, Arrested in Road Hassle

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (AP) — A 57-year-old retired minister turned farmer was under a charge of malicious trespass today because he drove his cattle into a barbedwire enclosure he built on an unopened interstate highway.

The Rev. Virgil O. Harrold contends the land is his and that he never got part of a $70,000 right-of-way judgment. He was released on his own recognizance to appear in City Court March 22.

The State Highway Commission says Harrold signed right-of-way agreements.

Harrold erected the fence Monday over part of Interstate 69 four miles southwest of Fort Wayne and drove his brown Swiss herd into it.

On Wednesday, eight carloads of state troopers and state highway workers tore it down and left after driving the cattle back onto Harrold's farm.

Harrold retrieved some of the barbed wire, built another enclosure and put his cattle inside again.

State troopers reappeared and took Harrold away in handcuffs after getting a warrant from the Fort Wayne prosecutor.

The Superior Court jury returned the price of the seeds, but decided to charge to experience his claims of $40 for depreciation of his mule, $25 for land damage, $50 for use of his tractor, $90 for rent of the land, $10 for fertilizer, and $2 for insecticides.

The seeds cost $1.

Civil Aeronautics Board hearing ended its second day of taking testimony.

The crash occurred on a Boone County, Ky., hillside near the Greater Cincinnati Airport. Fifty-eight of 62 persons aboard the American Airlines flight from New York were killed.

The hearing is expected to be concluded today.

Testimony Wednesday on flight characteristics of the 727 was given by William J. Allsopp, chief engineering test pilot for the Boeing Co., and Capt. Melvin R. Burton, manager of flying training at American's pilot school at Fort Worth, Tex.

The testimony include these points:

—That American has altered training procedures on the 727 since the accident here.

—That the nature of the 727 as a "second generation" jet gives it characteristics that make it somewhat different to handle than older jets.

Allsopp, of Seattle, Wash., said that at the altitude at which Flight 383 was flying just prior to the crash it would have been possible for the plane to have nosed down enough to hit the hillside before the pilot's instruments would have registered a change in altitude.

Burton said American has revised its pilots' training to put more emphasis on recovery from high rates of descent.

Allsopp testified that indications show that high descent rates close to the ground occur more frequently with the 727 than other types of jets.

Several others who witnessed the crash testified that they believed the plane was flying too low.

Weather observers, however, testified that despite the storm, nothing unusual was noted about winds in the area at the time of the crash.

Death Trial Defendant's Memory Bad

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — "I don't deny it. . . I just don't recall it," Richard H. Jamison told three judges trying him for first-degree murder Wednesday when asked if he denied slaying his wife and her former boss.

Jamison testified he could remember some incidents, but was unable to recall shooting his wife, Virginia, at their home and John Lyman, 36, at a downtown drug store, as he is accused of doing.

The statements came during extended hours of testimony by Jamison, most of which was aimed by the defense at proving that he is insane now and was at the time of the slayings.

The defense was expected to rest its case after calling more witnesses today.

White's Poll Case To Go To Tribunal

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Brown testified today that he struck numerous signatures filed by statewide election candidates for the same reasons that led him to disqualify William L. White of Mount Vernon.

Appearing for the second day before Ohio Supreme Court Master Commissioners, Brown denied claims that the discriminated against White in ruling him out as a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor.

Assistant Atty. Gen. Robert Macklin submitted a "sampling" of 137 petitions filed by virtually all May 3 primary candidates including Gov. James A. Rhodes which Brown said he found to be faulty.

The petitions were submitted to commissioners over vigorous objections by Columbus Attorney Robert N. Wistner, counsel for White, after Brown identified some of the errors detected with the aid of a reading glass.

Commissioners said they would submit a report to the Supreme Court in advance of a hearing scheduled for April 5 on White's suit to have his name placed on ballots as an opponent of Rhodes in the primary.

Haven Given To Children

SOUTH ORANGE, N.J. (AP) — The red, white and blue shield displayed on 139 houses in South Orange, means little to most passersby but to the children in the area, it means "friend."

The shields are a sign of safety for elementary school children who get into trouble, are harassed or get lost on their way home.

The plan, now in effect for South Orange's Marshall School District was organized by Ralph De Rose after his wife read about a similar plan in Oklahoma.

"It's always difficult to get a child who's in trouble on the streets to seek aid in a strange house," said De Rose, an attorney.

Phone Calls Reported

Three area residents Wednesday reported to the Circleville Police Department they had been receiving "nuisance telephone calls."

Farmers Union Picks Leaders

Pair To Replace Retiring Patton

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — The National Farmers Union has turned its leadership to two men who, leaders believe, will work together ideally to achieve the organization's goals of higher farm incomes and a larger membership.

Tony T. Dechant, 50, of Denver, secretary - treasurer since 1964, was elected president by the organization's annual convention which closed Wednesday night. He succeeds James O. Patton who retired after 25 years of leadership.

Working with Dechant will be Edwin Christianson, 56, of St. Paul, president of the Minnesota Farmers Union, who was elected vice president to succeed Glenn J. Talbot, a long-time North Dakota farm leader who also retired.

Dechant, a quiet-spoken man who moves with the assurance of a business executive, contrasts sharply with Patton, a husky, militant and driving crusader for welfare programs at home and abroad.

Dechant knows more members of the Farmers Union than any other leader of the organization. Friends said he knows best how to widen the base of the organization's membership, now heavily concentrated in the Great Plains, the upper Corn Belt, and the Rocky Mountain states.

By the same token Christianson was looked upon as an ideal assistant to work the Washington beat for the organization, where much effort is waged in behalf of farm legislation and administration decisions on that legislation.

Christianson is a close personal friend of two top leaders in the Johnson administration — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey and Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman — both of whom also are Minnesotans.

The other man expected to start soon is Arthur Findley, presently a guard at the Ohio State Penitentiary.

Spacemen Lounge, Lunch While Awaiting Rescue

TACHIKAWA, Japan (AP) — Astronauts David Scott and Neil Armstrong enjoyed a sunbath and a relaxed lunch as they waited for a destroyer to fish them and their Gemini spaceship out of the Western Pacific.

An air rescue pilot, Capt. John W. Maddox of Mulberry, Fla., described the scene after the Gemini 8 was brought down short of its three-day goal in space.

Maddox, who took his big four-engine HC130 down for a close-up look, said Scott and Armstrong "were acting real cool about it all."

Pararescue men from another plane out of Okinawa had parachuted into the calm Pacific near the capsule's green dye marker to fix a float collar to the spacecraft.

Maddox said the two space pilots remained inside their ship until the destroyer Mason arrived at the scene an hour and a half later. They were still wearing their space suits.

"The doors were open and they were just sitting there enjoying the sun and eating lunch," the 33-year-old pilot said.

The re-entry and recovery packet—possibly a cause of the sudden termination of the flight — was floating slightly submerged about 200 yards from the capsule, Maddox said.

"They (space officials) think this may have something to do with the problem," a debriefing officer said in reference to the re-entry and recovery packet.

The packet is the nose of the Gemini 8 capsule — the part that was stuck into the Agena when Gemini 8 was docked in space. It pops off during re-entry to let the parachutes deploy.

Maddox said the packet was separated from the space capsule during the final descent and was dropped with a parachute attached.

The pilot said that when the astronauts were lifted aboard the destroyer, they jumped out in mid-air of the ship's excited crew.

"They shook hands with those nearby them and then walked under their own power to the captain's stateroom," Maddox said.

The pilot of an amphibious plane circling the capsule, U.S. Air Force Capt. Creighton W. Forst, Mesa, Ariz., said he had been prepared to land and pick up the astronauts but at the last moment he was advised the destroyer would do it.

whenever Congress passes, and the President signs, a joint resolution bringing it into operation.

By the joint resolution technique it would be possible to write new tax rates into law in single day, lawmakers said, instead of the two or more months normally needed.

2. The 7 per cent tax credit for business investment in new equipment and machinery should be suspended immediately. Enacted in 1962 to encourage plant modernization, the device has encouraged record-shattering industrial outlays.

3. The extraordinary exuberance indicated by investment programs "is one of the major inflationary threats of this year," the committee said.

3. The costs of the military buildup for Viet Nam should thus be covered by raising tax revenues instead of curtailing federal outlays for civilian programs.

The committee thus went even beyond President Johnson's request in his economic message that Congress prepare basic tax studies to "permit quick decisions and prompt action" to raise or lower taxes as a counter to either inflation or recession.

GOP Paper Urges Action

Offensive in Cold War Is Demanded

WASHINGTON (AP) — The official publication of House Republicans has called for a shift in foreign policy to end what it termed "further drift" as a result of President Johnson's "purely defensive attitude."

The policy was outlined in the current weekly newsletter published by the public relations division of the National Republican Congressional Committee headed by Rep. Bob Wilson of California.

"Our basic assumption," the editorial said, is that "the cold war is a real war relentlessly waged by all Communist governments until a final decision."

The editorial said there must be "counteroffensive strategy in cooperation with as many other nations as possible. . . Together with our allies, we should hasten the development and further share the use, if not the manufacture, of all desirable weapons, including nuclear weapons."

It proposed installation of a "hot line" between Washington and all allied capitals to insure full consultation on a strategic decisions.

"While it is not our aim to escalate this basic conflict," the publication continued, "We cannot forget that we owe our past victories in the cold war to 'brinkmanship' and our failures to its absence."

The editorial said critics of the proposed policy "may point to the risk of nuclear war which they think it entails," but added: "They have never explained why, if Communists can risk an offensive strategy, we should fear to do the same."

White's Poll Case To Go To Tribunal

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Brown testified today that he struck numerous signatures filed by statewide election candidates for the same reasons that led him to disqualify William L. White of Mount Vernon.

Appearing for the second day before Ohio Supreme Court Master Commissioners, Brown denied claims that the discriminated against White in ruling him out as a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor.

Assistant Atty. Gen. Robert Macklin submitted a "sampling" of 137 petitions filed by virtually all May 3 primary candidates including Gov. James A. Rhodes which Brown said he found to be faulty.

The petitions were submitted to commissioners over vigorous objections by Columbus Attorney Robert N. Wistner, counsel for White, after Brown identified some of the errors detected with the aid of a reading glass.

Commissioners said they would submit a report to the Supreme Court in advance of a hearing scheduled for April 5 on White's suit to have his name placed on ballots as an opponent of Rhodes in the primary.

Haven Given To Children

SOUTH ORANGE, N.J. (AP) — The red, white and blue shield displayed on 139 houses in South Orange, means little to most passersby but to the children in the area, it means "friend."

The shields are a sign of safety for elementary school children who get into trouble, are harassed or get lost on their way home.

The plan, now in effect for South Orange's Marshall School District was organized by Ralph De Rose after his wife read about a similar plan in Oklahoma.

"It's always difficult to get a child who's in trouble on the streets to seek aid in a strange house," said De Rose, an attorney.

Three area residents Wednesday reported to the Circleville Police Department they had been receiving "nuisance telephone calls."

Farmers Union Picks Leaders

Pair To Replace Retiring Patton

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — The National Farmers Union has turned its leadership to two men who, leaders believe, will work together ideally to achieve the organization's goals of higher farm incomes and a larger membership.

Tony T. Dechant, 50, of Denver, secretary - treasurer since 1964, was elected president by the organization's annual convention which closed Wednesday night. He succeeds James O. Patton who retired after 25 years of leadership.

Working with Dechant will be Edwin Christianson, 56, of St. Paul, president of the Minnesota Farmers Union, who was elected vice president to succeed Glenn J. Talbot, a long-time North Dakota farm leader who also retired.

Dechant, a quiet-spoken man who moves with the assurance of a business executive, contrasts sharply with Patton, a husky, militant and driving crusader for welfare programs at home and abroad.

Dechant knows more members of the Farmers Union than any other leader of the organization. Friends said he knows best how to widen the base of the organization's membership, now heavily concentrated in the Great Plains, the upper Corn Belt, and the Rocky Mountain states.

By the same token Christianson was looked upon as an ideal assistant to work the Washington beat for the organization, where much effort is waged in behalf of farm legislation and administration decisions on that legislation.

Christianson is a close personal friend of two top leaders in the Johnson administration — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey and Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman — both of whom also are Minnesotans.

Police Job Turned Down By Candidate

Police Chief Robert Temple today said Paul Brown has decided not to accept a position on the force.

The chief said Brown told him he could not afford to quit his job in Columbus with a plastic manufacturing firm for the salary paid to special officers.

The pay hike granted this week to police and fire personnel applied only to those serving under civil service.

The other man expected to start soon is Arthur Findley, presently a guard at the Ohio State Penitentiary.

Spacemen Lounge, Lunch While Awaiting Rescue

TACHIKAWA, Japan (AP) — Astronauts David Scott and Neil Armstrong enjoyed a sunbath and a relaxed lunch as they waited for a destroyer to fish them and their Gemini spaceship out of the Western Pacific.

An air rescue pilot, Capt. John W. Maddox of Mulberry, Fla., described the scene after the Gemini 8 was brought down short of its three-day goal in space.

Maddox, who took his big four-engine HC130 down for a close-up look, said Scott and Armstrong "were acting real cool about it all."

Pararescue men from another plane out of Okinawa had parachuted into the calm Pacific near the capsule's green dye marker to fix a float collar to the spacecraft.

Maddox said the two space pilots remained inside their ship until the destroyer Mason arrived at the scene an hour and a half later. They were still wearing their space suits.

"The doors were open and they were just sitting there enjoying the sun and eating lunch," the 33-year-old pilot said.

Spacemen OK; Flight Aborted

"Until we know what the sequence of events are, we don't want to release the tape," said Operations Director Christopher C. Kraft. "Just because they said there was a problem with the No. 8 thruster does not mean this is so. We want to look at all the data and then try to decide what went wrong."

Here's what the data now available indicates.

Armstrong and Scott were preparing to make some maneuvers, using small Agena control jets to yaw the coupled craft. Purpose was to study resulting vibrations and their effect on the joined vehicles.

For some reason, there was a violent sideways movement, then the spaceships started to spin at a rate of about once every 10 seconds.

During this period, Armstrong's heart rate pulsed up to 150 beats a minute and Scott's to 135. Both normally register in the 70s. Armstrong managed to control the craft sufficiently to disconnect and back away from the Agena, which carried about 4,000 pounds of potentially dangerous fuel.

The Agena then stabilized but the Gemini resumed its rolling motion and went out of control.

Armstrong was unable to operate his main engines to stop the motion. He activated a set of 16 thrusters that are normally used only for re-entry and was able to stabilize after wrestling with the problem for 30 minutes.

Gemini mission rules make it mandatory that the spacecraft return to earth as swiftly as possible once the re-entry jets are used. This is because continued use would deplete the fuel supply of the only system available for controlling the space ship during the vital re-entry.

The trouble occurred during the fifth orbit, as Gemini 8 was entering a series of global revolutions that would take it away from main recovery areas.

Recovery officials decided that a landing in the Western Pacific during orbit No. 7 would offer the fastest recovery.

Computers calculated the time to fire the retro-rockets, and Armstrong fired them without a hitch as Gemini 8 sailed high over Africa.

Then began a suspenseful 32-minute period during which the astronauts made a fiery dash back through the atmosphere, skimming over Arabia, India and Red China. There are no Gemini tracking stations within range of this path and thus no communication with the pilots during the descent.

Recovery forces steamed toward the landing zone 500 miles east southeast of Okinawa.

An Air Force C54 rescue plane was over the area when Gemini 8 floated down on its red and orange parachute splashdown at 10:23 p.m. or 12:23 p.m. local time, in calm seas.

Because of communications difficulties, it was an hour later before the world knew whether the astronauts were safe.

The destroyer Mason picked up the astronauts at 1:30 a.m. EST. The capsule was retrieved a few minutes later. Armstrong and Scott were reported in good physical condition by a medical technician aboard the ship.

NASA officials said that until they have a chance to compare telemetry data and talk with the astronauts they will not know what caused the violent Gemini actions.

Gilruth said that preparations would continue as planned for the Gemini 9 flight, now set for May, "while we are expending every effort to find the cause of the Gemini 8 occurrence. So when the results of this flight become available we'll be as far along as possible with Gemini 9."

The four remaining flights in the Gemini program call for hookups with an Agena. This is a technique that must be perfected before man goes to the moon.

If Gemini 8 should show that there are major problems in joining two spacecraft, major changes might have to be made.

Wiped out by the sudden return to earth was Scott's planned record space walk. He was to have stepped outside for a record 2½ hours today to determine how well man can maneuver and work while functioning as a human satellite. The flight was to have lasted three days, covering 44 orbits.

Observers shuddered when the thought occurred that Scott was to have been outside Gemini 8 while the two were docked and that Armstrong had planned to disconnect and back away during this period.

The emergency landing halted what had been a flawless flight.

An Atlas-Agena rocket had blasted off from Cape Kennedy right on time at 10 a.m. to propel the Agena into a perfect 185-mile-high orbit. A Titan 2 followed exactly on schedule 101 minutes later to drill Gemini 8 into space.

The pursuit was on. With Armstrong at the controls, Gemini 8 was jockeyed over a tricky orbit-shifting course that ended with the linkup more than six hours later.

The World Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Everybody watches the Red dragon, the Red dragon looks in the mirror and likes what it sees, and the future shudders.

All through these past few months in the debate about the war in Viet Nam there has been one overriding concern: that Red China might step in, involving the United States in a massive land war in Asia.

The Johnson administration, to calm fears that through any better-skeller tactics it stumble into war with Red China, has tried to spread assurance that it would conduct the Vietnamese war with restraint.

This puts the United States in the position of fighting a war with one hand tied behind its back. But the Johnson administration has to worry about Red China and American public opinion, too.

This business of keeping the Americans guessing is an expensive weapon for the Chinese since they know, as President Johnson knows, the last thing this country wants is a land war with a nation with 700 million people, like Red China.

It could fight the war at home. The United States could never match it in manpower and would have to transport men and weapons half way around the world to fight at all.

The United States could, of course, demolish Red China and its people, by using some of its nuclear weapons. That might be even more hazardous.

At that point Russia, even though it has split with Red China, might feel compelled to assist it, get into the war, and use its own nuclear arsenal against the United States. The result would be chaos for mankind.

But the Red Chinese have even a better weapon than making the Americans worry about a war with Peking now. That's time.

Red China has suffered a number of recent reverses in its zeal to spread communism: in the East, in its split with Russia and Communist Cuba, and in Africa.

But it can endure these. Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara recently predicted that within two or three years Red China would be capable of launching a nuclear attack of its own on countries within 700 miles of China.

Those nuclear weapons will be the best form of blackmail against its neighbors that Red China ever had. The whole picture of Asia may begin to change then.

McNamara further said it would be a decade or more before Red China had the ability to make a nuclear attack on the United States. The Red Chinese might well consider it worthwhile to wait until then before truly beginning to move, whether or not it meant war with the West.

By then, if the United States faced nuclear destruction from Red China, it might be a lot less willing than now to rush to the aid of Asian neighbors who, without American support, would be gobbled up by the Chinese.

By James Marlow

The best hope this country and the non-Communist nations of Asia have for indefinite peace is that in 10 years or so the present aged, rigid Red leaders of China will no longer be in power and that their younger successors will have a more reasonable attitude toward their neighbors and the world.

Spacemen OK; Flight Aborted

"Until we know what the sequence of events are, we don't want to release the tape," said Operations Director Christopher C. Kraft. "Just because they said there was a problem with the No. 8 thruster does not mean this is so. We want to look at all the data and then try to decide what went wrong."

Here's what the data now available indicates.

Armstrong and Scott were preparing to make some maneuvers, using small Agena control jets to yaw the coupled craft. Purpose was to study resulting vibrations and their effect on the joined vehicles.

For some reason, there was a violent sideways movement, then the spacecraft started to spin at a rate of about once every 10 seconds.

During this period, Armstrong's heart rate pulsed up to 150 beats a minute and Scott's to 135. Both normally register in the 70s. Armstrong managed to control the craft sufficiently to disconnect and back away from the Agena, which carried about 4,000 pounds of potentially dangerous fuel.

The Agena then stabilized but the Gemini resumed its rolling motion and went out of control.

Armstrong was unable to operate his main engines to stop the motion. He activated a set of 16 thrusters that are normally used only for re-entry and was able to stabilize after wrestling with the problem for 30 minutes.

Gemini mission rules make it mandatory that the spacecraft return to earth as swiftly as possible once the re-entry jets are used. This is because continued use would deplete the fuel supply of the only system available for controlling the space ship during the vital re-entry.

The trouble occurred during the fifth orbit, as Gemini 8 was entering a series of global revolutions that would take it away from main recovery areas.

Recovery officials decided that a landing in the Western Pacific during orbit No. 7 would offer the fastest recovery.

Computers calculated the time to fire the retro-rockets, and Armstrong fired them without a hitch as Gemini 8 sailed high over Africa.

Then began a suspenseful 32-minute period during which the astronauts made a fiery dash back through the atmosphere, skimming over Arabia, India and Red China. There are no Gemini tracking stations within range of this path and thus no communication with the pilots during the descent.

Recovery forces steamed toward the landing zone 500 miles east southeast of Okinawa.

An Air Force C-54 rescue plane was over the area when Gemini 8 floated down on its red and orange parachute splashdown at 10:23 p.m. or 12:23 p.m. local time, in calm seas.

Because of communications difficulties, it was an hour later before the world knew whether the astronauts were safe.

The destroyer Mason picked up the astronauts at 1:30 a.m. EST. The capsule was retrieved a few minutes later. Armstrong and Scott were reported in good physical condition by a medical technician aboard the ship.

NASA officials said that until they have a chance to compare telemetry data and talk with the astronauts they will not know what caused the violent Gemini actions.

Gilruth said that preparations would continue as planned for the Gemini 9 flight, now set for May, "while we are expending every effort to find the cause of the Gemini 8 occurrence. So when the results of this flight become available we'll be as far along as possible with Gemini 9."

The four remaining flights in the Gemini program call for hookups with an Agena. This is a technique that must be perfected before man goes to the moon.

If Gemini 8 should show that there are major problems in joining two spacecraft, major changes might have to be made. Wiped out by the sudden return to earth was Scott's planned record space walk. He was to have stepped outside for a record 2½ hours today to determine how well man can maneuver and work while functioning as a human satellite. The flight was to have lasted three days, covering 44 orbits.

Observers shuddered when the thought occurred that Scott was to have been outside Gemini 8 while the two were docked and that Armstrong had planned to disconnect and back away during this period.

The emergency landing halted what had been a flawless flight.

An Atlas-Agena rocket had blasted off from Cape Kennedy right on time at 10 a.m. to propel the Agena into a perfect 185-mile-high orbit. A Titan 2 followed exactly on schedule 101 minutes later to drill Gemini 8 into space.

The pursuit was on. With Armstrong at the controls, Gemini 8 was jockeyed over a tricky orbit-shifting course that ended with the linkup more than six hours later.

The World Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Everybody watches the Red dragon, the Red dragon looks in the mirror and likes what it sees, and the future shudders.

All through these past few months in the debate about the war in Viet Nam there has been one overriding concern: that Red China might step in, involving the United States in a massive land war in Asia.

The Johnson administration, to calm fears that through any better-skillet tactics it stumble into war with Red China, has tried to spread assurance that it would conduct the Vietnamese war with restraint.

This puts the United States in the position of fighting a war with one hand tied behind its back. But the Johnson administration has to worry about Red China and American public opinion, too.

This business of keeping the Americans guessing is an expensive weapon for the Chinese since they know, as President Johnson knows, the last thing this country wants is a land war with a nation with 700 million people, like Red China.

It could fight the war at home. The United States could never match it in manpower and would have to transport men and weapons half way around the world to fight at all.

The United States could, of course, demolish Red China and its people, by using some of its nuclear weapons. That might be even more hazardous.

At that point Russia, even though it has split with Red China, might feel compelled to assist it, get into the war, and use its own nuclear arsenal against the United States. The result would be chaos for mankind.

But the Red Chinese have even a better weapon than making the Americans worry about a war with Peking now. That's time.

Red China has suffered a number of recent reverses in its zeal to spread communism: in the East, in its split with Russia and Communist Cuba, and in Africa.

But it can endure these. Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara recently predicted that within two or three years Red China would be capable of launching a nuclear attack of its own on countries within 700 miles of China.

Those nuclear weapons will be the best form of blackmail against its neighbors that Red China ever had. The whole picture of Asia may begin to change then.

McNamara further said it would be a decade or more before Red China had the ability to make a nuclear attack on the United States. The Red Chinese might well consider it worthwhile to wait until then before truly beginning to move, whether or not it meant war with the West.

By then, if the United States faced nuclear destruction from Red China, it might be a lot less willing than now to rush to the aid of Asian neighbors who, without American support, would be gobbled up by the Chinese.

Blue Cross Enrollment Scheduled Here

The best hope this country and the non-Communist nations of Asia have for indefinite peace is that in 10 years or so the present aged, rigid Red leaders of China will no longer be in power and that their younger successors will have a more reasonable attitude toward their neighbors and the world.

Blue Cross and Blue Shield will hold their 21st annual community enrollment Mar. 21-22 for residents of Circleville and Pickaway County. Headquarters is the City Loan Co., W. Main St.

Persons in reasonably good health, regardless of age, who are self-employed or working where there are less than five employees may enroll.

The Blue Cross 70-Day Special 80-20 Plan will be the coverage offered to non-group enrollees under age 65. This features 70 days of hospital care per year.

Other special benefits include care for nervous and mental disorders, out-patient surgical care and emergency x-ray, and infant coverage from birth. These are in addition to the many major hospital services covered under every Blue Cross Contract.

Blue Shield applicants will be enrolled under the Special Preferred Contract which provides doctor bill coverage of up to $300 for surgical procedures with benefits for general anesthesia and doctor's visits to hospital medical patients.

In addition, employee groups may also upgrade their coverage through a series of group endorsements or improved basic group plans. A Blue Cross representative will be on duty at enrollment headquarters during office hours to answer questions about Blue Cross and Blue Shield.

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

My son had a pilonidal cyst operation and now is ready to have more surgery on it.

There are some friends who have never heard of this condition. Others say that it can be cured by one operation. I am always being asked questions I cannot answer.

Mrs. R. F., Connecticut

Dear Mrs. F.: A pilonidal cyst is the result of some malformation during the development of a child. It occurs rather frequently in almost 5 per cent of all people. Not all pilonidal cysts demand surgery. The cyst is located at the base of the spine. Sometimes the only evidence of it is a slight dimpling.

Unfortunately, infections of the cyst complicate their removal and sometimes surgery must be repeated. First the abscess is emptied and cured and then the cyst itself is removed.

Your friends are understandably interested in your son's welfare. But interest and curiosity must not be confused.

You're Telling Me!

By William Ritt
Central Press Writer

There will be more than 120 million Americans of voting age by Election Day, 1968, the U.S. Bureau of the Census estimates. No matter what the issues — it's bound to be the biggest election event!

The bureau also estimates women voters in '68 will outnumber men ballot casters by some 62 million to 58 million. The voice of the people will have a distinct soprano lilt.

LAFF-A-DAY

"What's a corner?"

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

MARVIN MANDELBAUM, the gate keeper, was reading his evening paper when his wife, an inveterate bargain hunter, arrived home with a big package under her arm. "Marvin," she exulted, "I picked up this gorgeous bridal gown at a clearance sale for only $12.50!" "What earthly use have you for a bridal gown?" groaned Mr. Mandelbaum. "Don't you know we've been married already 44 years?" "Of course I know," snapped Mrs. M. undaunted. "But for $12.50 it can hang in the closet!"

Colorful Harry Oliver, self-styled "desert rat," tells about two lady tourists in Nevada who paused at an old prospector's lay-out and were served generous portions of his stew for luncheon. "Best stew I ever ate," enthused one of the ladies. "I'll give you twenty dollars for the recipe." The prospector's eyes lit up, but unfortunately, he had dumped so many leftovers and what-not into the stew that for the life of him he couldn't remember half the ingredients. In desperation he rushed a can of the stew to his pal at the U.S. Assay office, and got back a 3-page list with this P.S.: "Charlie: If you eat a plate of this stuff for dinner tonight, I'll give you 3 to 1 you won't survive till breakfast time tomorrow."

Contradictory Doctrines

By John Chamberlain

"If you want trouble," said old William Graham Sumner, America's pioneer sociologist, "nourish a doctrine."

Sumner didn't know the half of it. For real trouble, you have to nourish two contradictory doctrines and sell them to the same people. This is exactly what we have done for most of the newly-emergent nations of the world. We have encouraged all the old colonial regions to believe in the principle of "one man, one vote." But we have also encouraged every two-by-four tropical principality to believe in the magic of "one nation, one vote."

The result is a vast discrepancy in the United Nations, where "one nation, one vote" means that the Maldives Islands (94,000 pop., 112 square miles) and Gambia (324,000 pop., 4,000 square miles) can outvote the United States two-to-one in spite of the fact that together they represent fewer people than live in a single middle-sized American city. "One man, one vote," transmuted by the alchemy of modern nationalism into "one nation, one vote," means that the millions in the older and bigger nations, most of which have evolved by way of federation out of the shires and duchies of feudal memory, can be at the mercy of countries which, by themselves, can't even pay their local governments out of local revenues.

Yet if the vote in the UN were to be weighted in accordance with populations, that wouldn't work, either. For a nation like India would suddenly become some eight times as powerful as France or Britain — and if Red China should ever succeed in crashing the UN gate the whole West could be outvoted on a population basis by a single Asiatic power.

The "one man, one vote" principle does not, of course, get anything more than lip service inside most of the new countries that use the "one nation, one vote" sanctification in the UN to get all sorts of economic aid from the West. In country after country of Africa, "one man, one vote" has been used to gain an independence supposedly based on majority rule. But once they are ensconced in office, the new "democratic" leaders have more often than not used their power to rig all subsequent elections.

When there is change, it is normally accomplished by military men who have followed the Latin American tradition of the "golpe," or coup. In the past year the soldiers have called the shots in the Congo, in the Central African Republic, in Nigeria, in Dahomey, in Upper Volta and, most recently, in Ghana. Here the principle of "one man, one vote" has been replaced by what Stuart Cloete, the South African novelist, cynically calls the principle of "one man, one vote, once."

Recently, a fact-finding team headed by Representative John Ashbrook of Ohio journeyed to the former British colony of Rhodesia to investigate the honesty of the Ian Smith breakaway governments claims that it was taking an "evolutionary" path to a "one man, one vote" democracy. Nobody can penetrate to the inner spirit of a strange new geographical area in a short period of time, but, without being dogmatic about it, Congressman Ashbrook considers that the white Rhodesians are entitled to at least a "wait and see" verdict.

The Rhodesian constitution is not, on paper, an apartheid constitution; it grants the vote to people on the basis of property and literacy qualifications, and Negroes who possess property or who can read and write are admitted to the franchise. This could be a hypocritical cover for an ugly tyranny, or it could be the measure of a sincere desire to move in the direction of an orderly freedom that would not collapse quickly into a military dictatorship based on "one man, one vote, once."

In any event, the fact that the Rhodesian constitution is not an apartheid document would seem to offer room for a renewal of compromise negotiations between the British government, which is persisting in an unworkable boycott of Rhodesia, and Ian Smith's rebellious followers. Unlike Governor George Wallace of Alabama, Ian Smith has not said "never" to the aspirations of the black majority in Rhodesia. The situation is "workable" if Britain's Labor Prime Minister Harold Wilson and Ian Smith can only find a formula which would allow both sides to swallow a rather futile pride.

LAFF-A-DAY

"What's a corner?"

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

MARVIN MANDELBAUM, the gate keeper, was reading his evening paper when his wife, an inveterate bargain hunter, arrived home with a big package under her arm. "Marvin," she exclaimed, "I picked up this gorgeous bridal gown at a clearance sale for only $12.50!" "What earthly use have you for a bridal gown?" groaned Mr. Mandelbaum. "Don't you know we've been married already 44 years?" "Of course I know," snapped Mrs. M. undeterred. "But for $12.50 it can hang in the closet!"

Colorful Harry Oliver, self-styled "desert rat," tells about two lady tourists in Nevada who paused at an old prospector's lay-out and were served generous portions of his stew for luncheon. "Best stew I ever ate," enthused one of the ladies. "I'll give you twenty dollars for the recipe." The prospector's eyes lit up, but unfortunately, he had dumped so many leftovers and what-not into the stew that for the life of him he couldn't remember half the ingredients. In desperation he rushed a can of the stew to his pal at the U.S. Assay office, and got back a 3-page list with this P.S.: "Charlie: If you eat a plate of this stuff for dinner tonight, I'll give you 3 to 1 you won't survive till breakfast time tomorrow."

Looking Back in Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO
Mrs. Mable Litty, Grand Mound, Ia., was visiting her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harold F. Ash 504 E. Main St.

Ronald Eldridge, S. Washington St., was elected president of the Circle Valley Riding Club.

All parents and friends were invited to attend "Open House" in both the Elementary and High School Buildings at Ashville.

TEN YEARS AGO
New styles were shown during Circleville's first Spring Fashion Show held in the Grand Theater, with Mrs. Ruth Athey as commentator and members of the Junior Women's Club as models.

Pickaway County Roads remained in dangerous condition due to a snowfall which had accumulated 6½ inches by noon and was expected to continue until evening.

Four CHS seniors who attended the 10th annual International Forum of Rotary in Cincinnati gave their report to the local club.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO
Members of the Pickaway County Baby Beef Club planned to meet and reorganize for the coming year.

One hundred fifty county teachers attended the county teacher's meeting at Monroe Twp. School.

The Pickaway Livestock Assn. was to hold a banquet for directors and employees.

Contradictory Doctrines

By John Chamberlain

"If you want trouble," said old William Graham Sumner, America's pioneer sociologist, "nourish a doctrine."

Sumner didn't know the half of it. For real trouble, you have to nourish two contradictory doctrines and sell them to the same people. This is exactly what we have done for most of the newly-emergent nations of the world. We have encouraged all the old colonial regions to believe in the principle of "one man, one vote." But we have also encouraged every two-by-four tropical principality to believe in the magic of "one nation, one vote."

The result is a vast discrepancy in the United Nations, where "one nation, one vote" means that the Maldives Islands (94,000 pop., 112 square miles) and Gambia (324,000 pop., 4,000 square miles) can outvote the United States two-to-one in spite of the fact that together they represent fewer people than live in a single middle-sized American city. "One man, one vote," transmuted by the alchemy of modern nationalism into "one nation, one vote," means that the millions in the older and bigger nations, most of which have evolved by way of federation out of the shires and duchies of feudal memory, can be at the mercy of countries which, by themselves, can't even pay their local governments out of local revenues.

Yet if the vote in the UN were to be weighted in accordance with populations, that wouldn't work, either. For a nation like India would suddenly become some eight times as powerful as France or Britain — and if Red China should ever succeed in crashing the UN gate the whole West could be outvoted on a population basis by a single Asiatic power.

The "one man, one vote" principle does not, of course, get anything more than lip service inside most of the new countries that use the "one nation, one vote" sanctification in the UN to get all sorts of economic aid from the West. In country after country of Africa, "one man, one vote" has been used to gain an independence supposedly based on majority rule. But once they are ensconced in office, the new "democratic" leaders have more often than not used their power to rig all subsequent elections.

When there is change, it is normally accomplished by military men who have followed the Latin American tradition of the "golpe," or coup. In the past year the soldiers have called the shots in the Congo, in the Central African Republic.

lie, in Nigeria, in Dahomey, in Upper Volta and, most recently, in Ghana. Here the principle of "one man, one vote" has been replaced by what Stuart Cloete, the South African novelist, cynically calls the principle of "one man, one vote, once."

Recently, a fact-finding team headed by Representative John Ashbrook of Ohio journeyed to the former British colony of Rhodesia to investigate the honesty of the Ian Smith breakaway governments claims that it was taking an "evolutionary" path to a "one man, one vote" democracy. Nobody can penetrate to the inner spirit of a strange new geographical area in a short period of time, but, without being dogmatic about it, Congressman Ashbrook considers that the white Rhodesians are entitled to at least a "wait and see" verdict.

The Rhodesian constitution is not, on paper, an apartheid constitution; it grants the vote to people on the basis of property and literacy qualifications, and Negroes who possess property or who can read and write are admitted to the franchise. This could be a hypocritical cover for an ugly tyranny, or it could be the measure of a sincere desire to move in the direction of an orderly freedom that would not collapse quickly into a military dictatorship based on "one man, one vote, once."

In any event, the fact that the Rhodesian constitution is not an apartheid document would seem to offer room for a renewal of compromise negotiations between the British government, which is persisting in an

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

By LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

My son had a pilonidal cyst operation and now is ready to have more surgery on it.

There are some friends who have never heard of this condition. Others say that it can be cured by one operation. I am always being asked questions I cannot answer.

Mrs. R. F., Connecticut
Dear Mrs. F.: A pilonidal cyst is the result of some malformation during the development of a child. It occurs rather frequently in almost 5 per cent of all people. Not all pilonidal cysts demand surgery. The cyst is located at the base of the spine. Sometimes the only evidence of it is a slight dimpling.

Unfortunately, infections of the cyst complicate their removal and sometimes surgery must be repeated. First the abscess is emptied and cured and then the cyst itself is removed.

Your friends are understandably interested in your son's welfare. But interest and curiosity must not be confused.

Their major concern must be about your son's recovery and not in the technical aspects of the surgery.

Not all pilonidal cysts are the same size or complexity. Therefore, you cannot compare your son's problem with anyone else's.

For your own needs there is only one person to whom you must direct your questions, your doctor.

Our 6-year-old grandson was born with a pigeon shaped breast. He seems to be in excellent health. However, we are concerned that his heart and lungs may become affected as he grows older. How can we prevent the possibility of complications?

D.V., South Carolina
Dear Mr. V.: A pigeon breast is a malformation that occasionally occurs at birth. This deformity and the exact opposite, the funnel chest, are fortunately rare occurrences.

The fact that your grandson is in good health is an excellent indication that his heart and lungs are unaffected. There is less likelihood for the heart and lungs to be "crowded" as he becomes older and bigger.

X-rays of the chest can readily show the position of the heart and the expansion of the lungs. Under continued medical supervision there is no reason for your continued concern that his health will be impaired or that complications will arise.

An important contribution to your grandchild is to avoid repeated references to his chest. This will embarrass him or make him unduly aware of it. Surgery for pigeon breast and for funnel chest is exceedingly safe and successful for both the physical and the psychological aspects of the problem. The need for surgery varies with each individual case.

Children who bite their nails must be understood, not punished.

The main serving table was highlighted with a large centerpiece of fresh flowers. The Deborah Circle had charge of the program.

Traveling with Miss Erickson on a tour of speaking engagements in Ohio was the Rev. Luther Eid, on furlough from Hong Kong. Pastor Eid has also served in China and is president of the Lutheran Seminary in Kowloon, Hong Kong. He is also a professor.

The William Duvall family hosted Rev. Eid and Miss Erickson was a guest at the Virgil Brunning home, Amanda. Both missionaries were the guests of Pastor and Mrs. H. E. Giese for dinner Friday evening.

Local Women
Attend DAC
Luncheon Meet

Mrs. Clarence McAbee, Mrs. W. A. Thomas, Mrs. Martin W. Cromley and Mrs. LeRoy Hewitt Cromley, all of this area, attended the luncheon meeting of Old Trails Chapter, Daughters of the American Colonists. The event was held at the Willard Restaurant, Columbus.

John A. Dawson of Columbus, was guest speaker. His subject was "Coin Collection." He told the group that in early days money was a trade proposition, and the quest for money led to colonization. Gold coins were known 700 years B. C. Early Virginians used tobacco and Indians used small beads made of shells, known as Wampum, for money.

The first coinage in this country was in 1794. He said there have been 600 million Kennedy half dollars coined. Silverless quarters have been in circulation since last November and new dimes, without silver, will go into circulation this month. Silver content of the half dollar was reduced from 90 to 40 percent. All three coins are dated 1965.

Mrs. Dawson showed many coins he had collected. A question and answer period followed. Mrs. Harry Emrich, a member of the chapter, whose hobby is modern ceramics, displayed many pieces including a doll made of porcelain. She explained the various steps in making it.

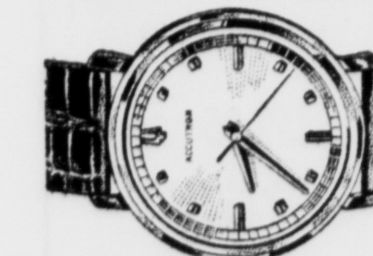

Mrs. John Dawson, regent, welcomed members and guests. Mrs. Scott Reynolds, chaplain, gave devotions. Mrs. J. Neil Thompson led the pledge of allegiance and Mrs. Warren Griffith presented the national defense report.

Mrs. W. A. Thomas, Circleville, was welcomed as a new member.

Hostesses were, Mrs. Edith Dines, Mrs. LeRoy Hewitt Cromley, Mrs. William Byers, Mrs. George Pugh and Mrs. Kenneth Porter.

Wife Giving Up Too Easily

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have enjoyed your column for a long time. Perhaps it is the only thing we have in common. After six years of married life with a fine M.D. specialist, I have had it. My problem is not how to make this marriage work, but how to work myself out of it with the least possible hurt to my husband and our two dear innocent children, both under 5 years of age. Since my husband and I are no longer in communication in any important way, (physically or mentally), there is nothing left. He's kind and generous, but possessive and dull. He is hard working and a good provider, but he's neither interesting nor fun. I have tried everything from vacations for two to new hobbies, to bring back that old feeling, but I have failed. I am bored and miserable. My husband thinks everything is just fine, but I can no longer live this dull life as though we were 50 instead of 35. How can I make him understand it is all over for me before I see a lawyer???

Sue Steele directed the program when 14 members of Circle No. 2, WWSW of First EUB Church, met Monday in the home of Mary Bond.

Opal Leist was co-hostess. Visitors were Betty Jenkins and Naomi Dade.

During her discussion the program leader said, "Looking at history through a knothole in the fence we catch a glimpse of how God has spoken to individuals through events and thereby caused the parade of history to be redirected."

Mary Elizabeth Radcliff, circle leader, conducted a short business meeting. Projects for the bazaar were discussed along with plans for the WWSW convention to be held at the church next month.

Maggie Mavis, Clara Stevenson and Marie Wilson were named as the new visiting committee.

DEAR ABBY: A man from the cemetery has been going around selling lots and monuments. I would like to know, do you really have to put the date of your birth on the monument? I don't think it's anybody's business.

NEEDS TO KNOW
DEAR NEEDS: It is customary to place the dates of birth and death on a monument but it is strictly a matter of choice, not law.

DEAR ABBY: So "Disgusted" has a beefy wife! How about those chubby chaps? In 20 years of marriage and three children I've kept my weight down to 112 pounds, but Lover Boy has put 55 pounds on his 5 foot 10 frame. We wives want trim, attractive husbands even though they may be a little thin or gray on top.

Husbands who flop night after night in an easy chair in front of the TV, limiting their exercise to bending the elbow to feed their faces, are repulsive. When a man refuses to get medical help, or exercise self-control or common-sense dieting, it's no wonder he has about as much sex appeal as a ruptured duck.

DEAR ABBY: A man from the cemetery has been going around selling lots and monuments. I would like to know, do you really have to put the date of your birth on the monument? I don't think it's anybody's business.

NEEDS TO KNOW
DEAR NEEDS: It is customary to place the dates of birth and death on a monument but it is strictly a matter of choice, not law.

DEAR ABBY: So "Disgusted" has a beefy wife! How about those chubby chaps? In 20 years of marriage and three children I've kept my weight down to 112 pounds, but Lover Boy has put 55 pounds on his 5 foot 10 frame. We wives want trim, attractive husbands even though they may be a little thin or gray on top.

Husbands who flop night after night in an easy chair in front of the TV, limiting their exercise to bending the elbow to feed their faces, are repulsive. When a man refuses to get medical help, or exercise self-control or common-sense dieting, it's no wonder he has about as much sex appeal as a ruptured duck.

Improvement Effort in Watts 'Too Late'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "It couldn't happen here — not in Los Angeles," people said in horror last August, as 34 persons died and $40 million in property was put to the torch in bloody race riots.

But it happened, and an investigative team later warned that the holocaust could seem but "a curtain-raiser" if conditions were not quickly improved in the city's teeming, sprawling Negro district.

Improvements efforts were launched, but apparently not soon enough.

Racial violence boiled up again Tuesday as more than 600 Negroes rioted in Watts, cradle of last August's incredible devastation, leaving two dead and at least two dozen injured.

If last summer's "curtain-raiser" still overshadowed its second act, and if Tuesday's violence was, as police felt and hoped, short-lived and quickly quelled, it quelled something else as well: the hope that things were better now.

Long before last August, civil rights leaders had predicted a racial explosion in the 50-square-mile southeast Los Angeles area they call "the black ghetto."

Of Los Angeles' 2,479,015 population, 334,916 are Negroes and most live on the southeast side, surrounding and filling Watts to a density 98 per cent Negro.

Within that giant ghetto is: Overcrowding: 27.3 persons per acre, compared to a county average of 7.4.

Unemployment: 1,000 Negroes arriving each month, landing in Watts, looking for jobs, failing to find them, staying on and sinking lower on the economic scale.

Civic blight: Buildings dating from past decades, left to smoulder as cheap rentals beginning with World War II when wartime industry attracted a Negro population boom in job-seekers from the South.

Distrust of police: Negroes have long accused Los Angeles police Chief William H. Parker of antipathy to the cause of civil rights. Parker has denied this, but it has not stilled Negro leaders' accusations of physical and emotional brutality on the part of police.

Embitterment: Southern Negroes, arriving in Watts with bitter memories, expecting a land of milk and honey and seeing it, but realizing the milk and honey are not for them. Social workers point out that though they may be better off here than they were before, their embitterment deepens in direct proportion as the reality falls short of their dreams — dreams they see being lived by white people in the nicer districts.

NOTICE OF APPOINTMENT No. 22219 Estate of Arthur W. Phillips, Deceased Notice is hereby given that Arthur H. Phillips whose Post Office address is 2543 Lakewood Drive, Columbus, Ohio 43224 has been duly appointed Executor of the Estate of Arthur W. Phillips late of Pickaway County, Ohio, deceased. Dated this 5th day of March, 1966 GUY G. CLINE Judge of the Probate Court Pickaway County, Ohio Mar. 17, 24, 31.

Brown and headed by John McCone, former director of the Central Intelligence Agency, reported that the August riot was rooted in growing tension and "the dull, devastating spiral of failure."

The commission recommended urgent steps to increase employment, improve education and improve police relations with citizens of the aggrieved area.

In the three months since, federal, state, county and city agencies began hasty work.

Under the Office of Economic Opportunity, which administers the federal war on poverty, and its Economic and Youth Opportunity Agency, teen-age programs were begun and employment possibilities were beginning to be explored for Watts' army of bored, restless youngsters.

Law enforcement officers beefed up their community-relations programs, entered the area to explain their role, solicit cooperation and promise impartial attention to citizens' complaints.

Only last Friday, a middle-aged Negro told a newsman:

"Oh, there's no brutality down here lately. The police are nice as pie."

But another said: "They better hurry. They gotta put up or things don't shape up right quick just wait till the hot weather comes. Just you wait."

Tuesday, suddenly, there was no time to wait.

The commission recommended urgent steps to increase employment, improve education and improve police relations with citizens of the aggrieved area.

In the three months since, federal, state, county and city agencies began hasty work.

Under the Office of Economic Opportunity, which administers the federal war on poverty, and its Economic and Youth Opportunity Agency, teen-age programs were begun and employment possibilities were beginning to be explored for Watts' army of bored, restless youngsters.

Only last Friday, a middle-aged Negro told a newsman:

"Oh, there's no brutality down here lately. The police are nice as pie."

But another said: "They better hurry. They gotta put up or things don't shape up right quick just wait till the hot weather comes. Just you wait."

Tuesday, suddenly, there was no time to wait.

Watts Negroes' Target Said Americans, Mexicans

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "For two weeks we'd been hearing rumors that the Negroes were planning to run the Mexican and white businessmen out of Watts," said Police Detective G. H. Riley. "And we'd noticed that the Mexicans seemed tense, afraid."

But, Riley said Wednesday, "we couldn't do much about a rumor until it became a fact. Until Tuesday, we didn't have anything tangible enough to nip in the bud."

Tuesday, after a routine arrest near Jordan High School in Watts, center of Los Angeles teeming, sprawling Negro district, a riot bloomed into ugly flower across an area already devastated by six days of racial violence last August.

Between 3:30 p. m., when restless high school pupils went into the streets looking for an excuse for a fight and found one in the

Medic Saves Man's Frozen Right Arm

MARION, Ohio (AP) — Two months ago Howard Kramer's right arm appeared useless. Today it still is not normal, but it should soon be usable again.

Kramer, 54, was caught in tractor machinery while working alone on his farm Jan. 8. By the time help arrived, his right forearm "was frozen absolutely solid . . . stone solid," said Dr. Milton F. Axthelm.

Dr. Axthelm, of Caledonia, took Kramer to Marion General Hospital, where treatment was begun to restore heat to the arm Tuesday Kramer left the hospital, his arm still in a sling, but recovered sufficiently that Dr. Axthelm expects the limb to be saved.

The arm was exposed for about three hours in 16-degree temperatures. Normally that would not result in freezing. But clothing was entangled in the tractor in such a way that it virtually halted circulation of blood into the exposed arm. Dr. Axthelm said, resulting in more than normal chilling.

Dr. Axthelm used a thermal machine to gradually restore heat to the arm. This treatment lasted for three days. The thermal machine is used to raise or lower body temperatures during various treatments.

Alice Ewing Is Arrested In Michigan

CINCINNATI (AP) — Alice Ewing, 23, wanted in Cincinnati to serve a 90-day jail term stemming from a sensational murder case, has been arrested in Jackson, Mich.

She was arrested on a warrant issued here Tuesday. Miss Ewing, said she would not return to Ohio voluntarily, but Cincinnati authorities began extradition proceedings.

Miss Ewing has eluded police in Cincinnati and in her hometown of Fort Thomas, Ky., since it was learned that the Ohio Supreme Court refused to review her case.

Miss Ewing was convicted last May of using a credit card belonging to Wanda Cook, a Bellevue, Ky., nurse who had been killed in a Cincinnati hotel room last October.

Robert Abbott of Dayton, Ky., who was engaged to Miss Ewing at the time, is serving a life term for the murder.
Miss Ewing was convicted of larceny by trick for using the credit card to buy luggage.

DeGaulle Stock Falling Again in Germany

BONN, Germany (AP) — Charles de Gaulle's stock is falling again in West Germany because he apparently wants France to do here just what he wants to stop the United States from doing in France. He is taking steps to put French forces in Germany fully under his own command.

There are 60,000 to 70,000 French troops in West Germany, at least on paper. The United States has 26,000 in France.

In West Germany, the troops of the United States, Britain and France still are stationed in the same areas they have held 20 years. About 50,000 British are in the north and 250,000 Americans in the central and southern portions of the country. The French are in the southwest.

The West Germans do not complain about this situation. Yet in some ways they are even more sensitive about national sovereignty than De Gaulle. In 1945, they were a defeated nation without rights. A decade later they joined the Atlantic Alliance. Any proposal that looks like a lowering of their status gets a most unfriendly reception in Bonn.

So the presence of foreign troops is all right with Chancellor Ludwig Erhard's government as long as they are under a unified Atlantic command, as are West Germany's own 400,000 men. Looking across the Iron Curtain that divides their country, the West Germans express worry if there is any question of cutting down the strength.

What the West Germans don't like is the idea of returning to anything like the situation right after World War II, when foreign troops occupying German territory were the supreme authority in the land. This could occur under present treaties if an emergency arose and the commanders decided their troops were threatened—say by war or rioting. Erhard's government has been trying hard to eliminate this possibility but has run into domestic political difficulties.

Now the prospect arises that the French troops will revert to purely French command even without an emergency.

De Gaulle probably is ready to negotiate some kind of joint command directly with Erhard. Erhard wrote him last week that all these matters concern the alliance as a whole and need to be negotiated with all 15 members. Naturally these include the United States.

De Gaulle has made it plain that he would like a European defense system built around his own nuclear force and allied only loosely with the United States. There has been much talk of a political and defense organization among the countries of the Common Market: France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg. So far it has come to nothing.
None of the other governments, and particularly not the West German, is interested in a defense system designed to drive the United States out of Europe and to risk losing the protection of the American nuclear umbrella.

De Gaulle's plan to resume full control over French troops in Germany may be designed as pressure on the West Germans to change their minds. A Gaulist group active in West German politics wants to do just that. Its leaders are ex-Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and his former defense minister, Franz Josef Strauss. They belong to Erhard's Christian Democratic party but are at odds with him and Foreign Minister Gerhard Schroeder.

Erhard and Schroeder now have the problem of how to keep the French troops in Germany, give up as little national sovereignty as possible and at the same time avoid antagonizing the United States by making a special deal with De Gaulle.

Westinghouse Orders New Furloughs

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The latest episode in a series of labor troubles stretching over recent years at Westinghouse Electric Corp.'s Columbus Appliance Division finds anywhere from 500 to 2,500 employees furloughed, depending on whose estimate one goes by.

Furloughs were declared Wednesday by management for employees of the refrigeratory assembly line and "associated functions" at the sprawling west side factory where some 5,000 hourly personnel are on the payroll.

Local 746, International Union of Electrical Workers, responded by calling a meeting for next Tuesday which could produce a strike vote.

The furloughs, management said, stemmed from an illegal work stoppage Monday that caused disciplinary layoffs in "feeder areas" of the plant supplying parts for appliance assembly.

K.P. Day, employee relations manager newly transferred from Lima, said only 500 were laid off Wednesday. Union sources said it was more like half the hourly work force.

Between 3:30 p. m., when restless high school pupils went into the streets looking for an excuse for a fight and found one in the arrest, and 8:30 p.m., when police hopefully pronounced the disturbance contained, two persons were killed, 26 were injured, 49 were arrested, many cars were overturned and burned and 19 buildings were damaged or looted.

But Riley and his partner, Detective C. L. Larson, said the arrest, over a rock-throwing incident, only served to trigger the riot.

The violence, brewing for weeks, was fed by rumor and was actually born in a series of shootings Monday night, they said.

Larson gave this account:

A Mexican-American, about 25, on crutches — who has not yet been located — and Duane Graves, 16, a Negro, got into a fight Monday night at Bob's Liquor Store, 2066 E. 103rd St., a stone's throw from the high school.

George Sanders and John Newman, both 22, both Negroes, broke up the fight and went into the store. Graves ran a block down the street.

A carload of Mexican-Americans cruised by and shotgunned Graves, wounding him in the left arm and leg, then drove past the liquor store and fired four blasts at Sanders and Newman. Sanders was wounded in the hand and throat. Newman was unhurt.

A fourth Negro, Francis Keyes, 43, ran out of the back to a telephone booth. The Mexican-Americans pursued him in their car and shot up the booth, but Keyes escaped without injury.

13 Tapped For NHS at Logan Elm

"For outstanding scholarship, leadership, service and character I tap you..." were the magic words climaxing an impressive National Honor Society Tapping Service for 13 Logan Elm High School juniors and seniors on Tuesday afternoon.

The candlelight service under the direction of faculty adviser, Mrs. Jean Mills, was conducted in the gym with the entire student body present.

Dr. Lloyd Sprou, Director of Admissions at Ohio State University, was the speaker. Dr. Sprouse used as his topic, "The Big Four — Scholarship, Leadership, Service and Character". Of scholarship, he said, "It is the result of a head-on collision with new and challenging ideas." Of leadership, he said that it can only succeed with devoted followers and that great leaders, like diamonds, are made under pressure. In discussing character, he quoted Abraham Lincoln, saying that, "Character is like a tree; reputation like its shadow."

The speaker was introduced by Daryl Reichelderfer, president of Logan Elm NHS. The history was given by Elaine Tatman and Rebecca Alkire. ## 13 Tapped For NHS at Logan Elm

"For outstanding scholarship, leadership, service and character I tap you..." were the magic words climaxing an impressive National Honor Society Tapping Service for 13 Logan Elm High School juniors and seniors on Tuesday afternoon.

The candlelight service under the direction of faculty adviser, Mrs. Jean Mills, was conducted in the gym with the entire student body present.

Dr. Lloyd Sprouss, Director of Admissions at Ohio State University, was the speaker. Dr. Sprouss used as his topic, "The Big Four — Scholarship, Leadership, Service and Character". Of scholarship, he said, "It is the result of a head-on collision with new and challenging ideas." Of leadership, he said that it can only succeed with devoted followers and that great leaders, like diamonds, are made under pressure. In discussing character, he quoted Abraham Lincoln, saying that, "Character is like a tree; reputation like its shadow."

The speaker was introduced by Daryl Reichelderfer, president of Logan Elm NHS. The history was given by Elaine Tatman and Rebecca Alkire. Carol DeLong called the roll and presented pins to new members. Speaking on the cardinal principles of National Honor Society were Susan Carpenter, "Scholarship"; Marsha Gunder, "Leadership"; Cynthia Hildenbrand, "Service"; and Ellen Whaley, "Character".

Music for the service was provided by Lorna Poling who sang, "Climb Every Mountain" from "Sound of Music" and the Logan Elm Boy's Octet. Terry Moss, Daryl Reichelderfer, Danny Dahl, Mike Helwagen, Charles Rhodes, Terry Ferrell, Tom Smith and Scott Wilson, who sang, "High Barbary" a sea chanty and "Alleluia" by Richard Schilling. Brenda Mills was the pianist for the prelude, processional and recessional.

Tapped for membership were juniors, Alan Gabriel, Debbie Ankrom, Paula Weaver, Richard Massie, Tom Smith, Brenda Fausnaugh, Scott Wilson and Elaine Judy and seniors, Ann Perdion, Mary Carter, Rick Rawlins, Mary Goode and Steve Burger.

Parents of those tapped were seated behind a screened area to preserve the element of surprise. Refreshments were served to members, parents and guests at the close of the service.

To be eligible for membership in the National Honor Society the student must have achieved at least a 3.0 scholastic average. From those eligible no more than 10 per cent of the junior class and no more than 15 per cent of the senior class are selected on the basis of scholarship, leadership, service and character.

1965 Pennant Winners Now Last in Standings

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It's October in March. Turn the Grapefruit League standings upside down and you've got the World Series all over again.

Pennant winners in 1965, the Minnesota wins and Los Angeles Dodgers are learning how the other half lives this spring. Their combined record is a less than championship 0-11 pace.

The American League champion wins dropped their seventh straight Wednesday, bowing 2-1 to baseball's specialists in losing, the New York Mets.

Meanwhile, the Dodgers continued to show how easy it'll be to defend their world title without holdouts Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale by taking a 9-0 thumping from the New York Yankees for their fourth straight setback.

The only other winless team is Washington, which dropped its fifth straight, 6-2 against the Braves. Boston and the Chicago Cubs managed their first victories, the Red Sox clipping Philadelphia 5-3 and the Cubs downing Cleveland 3-1.

In other games, San Francisco whipped the California Angels 7-3, the Chicago White Sox

Louis downed Detroit 4-2 and Kansas City whacked Pittsburgh 12-5.

Eddie Bressoud an American League refugee, drove home the winning run for the Mets with a 10th-inning single against the wins, Chuck Hiller started the winning rally with a single and moved up on an infield out before scoring on Bressoud's hit.

Johnny Lewis homered for New York and Tony Oliva, making his first appearance of the spring after ending his holdout, drove in Minnesota's only run with a seventh-inning single.

Dodger pitchers — one of them named Koufax or Drysdale — for 13 hits in running up their victory over the world champs.

Clete Boyer led the Yanks' attack with two singles and a double while veterans Whitey Ford, Bill Stafford and Steve Hamilton limited the Dodgers to five singles.

Army Poised For NIT Test

Brigham Young Named Favorite

NEW YORK (AP) — Army, the surprise team of the tourney, gets its big chance against the favored Brigham Young Cougars in the semifinals tonight of the National Invitation college basketball tournament.

Villanova, on an eight-game winning streak and triumphant in 12 of its last 13 games, is expected to down NYU in the other semi before a capacity turnout of 18,400 at Madison Square Garden.

The winners meet at 2 p.m., ES Saturday in the championship game which will be nationally televised over CBS. He losers play for third place at noon Saturday.

Virtually everyone wrote off Army's chances when the West Point Cadets lost sturdy 6-foot-6 Mike Silliman, their star, because of a knee injury near the end of the regular season.

But another senior, 6-foot-3 Bill Helkie of South Bend, Ind., stepped into the breach and the Black Knights of the Hudson upset Manhattan and San Francisco to reach the round of four. Helkie tossed in 27 points against Manhattan and 34 against the Dons.

The fired-up Cadets are expected to have tougher going against the BYU Cougars led by Dick Nemelka and Jeff Congdon. The top-seeded Cougars showed a lot of poise in defeating Temple in the quarterfinals Monday.

Army has an added incentive to upset the Cougars. The Cadets lost in the NIT semifinals the last two years. On each occasion the teams that beat them, Bradley and St. John's, went on to win the championship. Thus the Cadets figure that if they overcome YU they'll win the championship against either Villanova or NYU.

Mets Hope for 9th Place Finish

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Wes Westrum is the only manager in the long history of baseball who can become a rousing success by finishing ninth.

After four years in 11th place with Casey Stengel, newest member of the Hall of Fame, the New York Mets hope to perform the Little Miracle of Flushing Bay by evacuating the National League cellar.

When the Mets won their first exhibition game in Florida it was the first time they ever had won an opener anywhere. A new world record, said Stengel, who watched in his new capacity as vice president.

Buoyed by the power in the bats of Kenny Boyer and Dick Stuart, Westrum has become a positive thinker. "I'm not going to be a 10th-place manager," said the man who took over last July 26 after Stengel suffered a fractured hip and was forced into retirement.

"We're thinking first division," said Westrum. As the 1965 Mets wound up with a 50-112 record, 47 games off the pace and 36 games out of fifth place, Wes really is aiming high.

"We hope to catch Houston and Chicago and St. Louis," he said. "Baseball is a game of momentum. If you get off to a good start there's no telling how far you can go."

The subject was switched quickly to personnel before Wes got around to claiming the pennant. That is the way things go in spring training.

"We have a little more power with Stuart and Boyer to go with Ed Kranepool, Ron Swoboda and Jim Hickman," he said. "Now the pitchers can't work around our good hitters and get the weak sisters."

Obviously, Westrum has laudable motives.

Stuart, a 28-homer, 95 - RBI man but a .234 hitter and Mr. Stonefingers in the infield, has been acquired from the Phils to play first. Ron Hunt, recovered from the shoulder separation that put him out most of last season after making the All-Star team in 1964, is the second baseman.

Lancaster upset Columbus Linden 57-56 on a free throw with two seconds left and Cleveland East knocked off Akron Central 56-54 on a bucket with 32 seconds to go.

Lancaster's Golden Gales, only a third place finisher in the regular campaign, thus moved into Saturday's Columbus regional final. They'll play the winner of tonight's Columbus East-Cambridge tussle for a berth in the four-team state tournaments.

Cleveland East's Blue Bombers qualified for Saturday play at Kent versus the winner of tonight's tilt between Warren Harding, No. 4 in the final AP poll, and Canton Lincoln which ousted top-rated Canton McKinley last weekend.

back from Buffalo for a last chance.

With Al Jackson traded to St. Louis, the pitching is thin and young back of Jack Fisher who lost more games, 24, than any pitcher in the league.

Royals Near End of Pro Cage Season

CINCINNATI (AP)—The Cincinnati Royals have a chance this weekend to possibly decide their opponents in the semi-final playoffs of the National Basketball Association.

The Royals end the regular season at Philadelphia Saturday and at Boston Sunday. Philadelphia and Boston are fighting it out for first place, Philadelphia is currently in front by one game.

Barring a first place tie, the third-place Royals announced Wednesday dates for their best of five playoff series.

The first game will be March 23 on the opponents' court, with the second game in Cincinnati March 26. The third game on March 27 again will be on the opponents floor.

A fourth game, if necessary, will be played here March 30, with the fifth game, also if necessary, on the opponents' court.

If Philly and Boston tie for first place and a playoff is needed, the Royals' schedule would be set back one day.

but they cannot in any way get another job in what is termed organized baseball — the major leagues, the minor leagues or any other parties to their various rules and agreements.

Koufax and Drysdale, as well as Maloney, and other holdouts as Juan Marichal of San Francisco, are bound to the clubs they played for last year by baseball contract, which contains the unique, much-discussed and highly controversial reserve clause.

Under the reserve clause, each player becomes the property of the team he signs with until that team relinquishes rights to him, either by trading him or giving him his release.

If the team does not wish to let the player go, the player must sign with that club in order to play organized baseball. He has no other recourse.

The reserve clause is one of Wisconsin's key exhibits in the trial now going on in Milwaukee with the state trying to prove baseball violates antitrust statutes.

NOTICE OF APPOINTMENT

No. 22225
Estate of William C. Truex Deceased

Notice is hereby given that Marie M. Truex whose address is 150 Hayward Ave., Circleville, Ohio, has been duly appointed Administratrix of the Estate of William C. Truex late of Pickaway County, Ohio, deceased. Dated this 8th day of March, 1966.

The state contends that the reserve clause is one of the instruments by which baseball has the "monopolistic ability . . . to control the game."

At one point in the Milwaukee trial the state entered into the record testimony taken from former baseball commissioner Ford Frick, who described the reserve clause as giving each club "each year . . . the right of reserve for next year" on a player's services.

Asked what a player could do if he wanted to play elsewhere, Frick answered:

"The player can, of course, quit organized baseball."

So when Dodger General Manager Buzzie Bavasi says he will not contact Koufax and Drysdale and tells Manager Walter Alton to plan on playing without them, then Koufax and Drysdale face the prospect of not playing baseball in the United States this season unless they give in.

And when Maloney says the Reds have told him to have "a nice summer in Fresno" it's highly likely Maloney will wind up in the same situation as the other two pitching stars if conciliatory moves are not made by one side or the other.

"That's the way the game is played."

All interested parties are hereby notified that the following Administrators have filed their inventories and appraisements in the Probate Court of Pickaway County, Ohio:

No. 22108 Helen R. Counts, Administratrix of the estate of Fred Owens, deceased.

No. 22139 Maurice E. Murray, Administrator of the estate of Florence Murray, deceased.

And that said inventories will be for hearing and settlement before this Probate Court on Monday, March 21st, 1966, at 9 o'clock A.M. Exceptions to said inventories, if any, must be filed herein on or before March 15th, 1966.

About All Holdouts Can Do Is Just To Quit Baseball

FOR LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — What can Sandy Koufax and Don Drysdale of the Los Angeles Dodgers and Cincinnati's Jim Maloney do if contract negotiations remain at their current impasse? Quit.

They can go to work in another industry or they can retire, but they cannot in any way get another job in what is termed organized baseball — the major leagues, the minor leagues or any other parties to their various rules and agreements.
